c. Quick Response Purchasing for the Field Stations

In an effort to provide more timely logistical support to operational requirements from the field, the Office of Logistics has established a new quick reaction capability.

25X1 This new facility [] is managed by the []
Procurement Branch of the Supply Division and is designed to ensure that material will be in transportation channels within three days of receipt of order. This new procedure is exclusively for responding to operational requirements where time is critical. The Special Support Assistant to the DDA has released a logistics originated worldwide message explaining this new support mechanism. This new procurement procedure permits requisitions to be processed on a fill or kill basis without the traditional paperwork (Form 88). Material
25X1 purchased in response to operational requirements can be packed and shipped directly by the [] Procurement Branch, thus, bypassing normal depot processing. The field has been advised 25X1 that this new capability is not intended to, nor does, replace 25X1 existing procurement channels. []
